The ValCo modern Victorian picture frame combines the old-world charm of Baroque, Rococo, Gothic Revival, Victorian, and Tudor designs of the 17th to 19th centuries with contemporary aesthetics. This blend of past and present creates a timeless design that provides a fresh perspective to showcase art, photographs, and relics.

Frames are handcrafted from five to over sixteen layers of raw residential wood moulding, trim, and dimensional lumber. The modular design moulding is stacked to create widths ranging from 1.5” to over 12”. The hidden multi-color smart LED kit is installed inside and on the rear exterior of the frame to highlight the product in low-light environments. Moreover, color application is applied by hand and completely customizable. Each frame is recorded, serialized, and has a certificate of authenticity.

This body of work constitutes a visual representation of a poignant quote derived from the book "After the War is Over":

"In the wreckage of war, we find the seeds of resilience and the strength to rebuild."

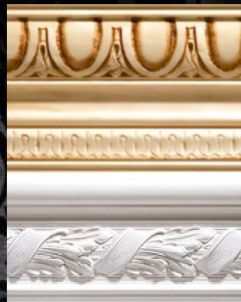

The post-conflict experiences of our active duty and veterans after cessation of hostilities are often overlooked. I have spent countless hours with a few tools and a paintbrush creating the Modern Victorian frame style, trying to comprehend this complex subject.

It is imperative to recognize that the demands placed on our youth extend beyond temporal commitment and familial proximity when they are deployed in the interests of our nation. It is incumbent upon us to proactively engage with our veterans. Many are contending with unseen challenges. Despite their outward appearance of strength, they bear the weight of profound fatigue and enduring burdens.
